Carlos is studying in the JD program at Osgoode Hall Law School.

Before going to law school, Carlos studied at Ivey Business School at Western University, where he graduated with distinction from the Honours Business Administration program. During his time at Western, Carlos contributed to the London community through S.W.A.M., an organization dedicated to teaching children with disabilities how to swim, and London Track 3, an organization dedicated to teaching people with disabilities to ski and snowboard.

During his time at law school, Carlos has had the opportunity to explore his interest in business law through the Advanced Business Law Workshop I, an advanced business law class that focuses on corporate finance. Carlos was also part of the Organization of Latin American Students at Osgoode (OLAS), and the Osgoode Real Estate and Infrastructure Association (REISA).

In his free time, Carlos enjoys competing in triathlons. Most recently, Carlos completed the Ironman 70.3 at Oceanside.
